A spectacle, so august, so splendid, so sublime, that it must be grateful, to the sight of God and Man. Millions of freemen, now croud the temples of the Most High, and offer the incense of gratitude on his holy altars. Ten thousand voices, now chant a nations choral hymn for tyranny o erthrown. The war-worn veteran, low-bowed beneath the weight of years, comes forth once more to witness our joy. Assenting to the story of our nation s birth, he shakes his silver locks in mild applause, lives o er each scene of former triumph, and offers his fervent prayer for the perpetuation of our liberties. Let us then, on this day, forgetting the cares and misfortunes of life, give ourselves wholly to our country, and like the children of one great family, celebrate the natal day of our common parent. There was a period, fellow-citizens, when the proud emotions of this day, were not mingled with one uncongenial feeling. With the first ray of morning light, every eye awoke to pleasure, every bosom expanded with joy. The rapturous enthusiasm which encircled the whole community, gave a character to our national festival, and eloquently told the world, that we were the members of a republic.
